The Glants and Bostons both won yestorday and remain half a game apart in the gruelling fight for first place in the National League. Each had a close shave. O'Toole made his first appearance for the Giants and made good. In Philadelphia the Braves landed the laurel in a combat of twelve innings. The Brooklyns tumbled into the last place pit, the lyns tumbled into the last place pit, the last place by means of a larry, but was caught napping off third after O'Toole sacrificed. the Giants at Ebbet's Field yesterday afternoon formed an excellent object lesson of the influence of environment upon The epitball manipulator discarded by the Pirates had a rather interesting argument with Ed Ruelbach and Southpaw Allen, but won his point by 4 to 3. When he wore the smoky gray of the Corsairs this overly advertised athlete combined just about everything that was undesirable in the makeup of a winning pitcher. If his work of yesterday is to furnish a true line O'Toole has left in Smoketown all of his badness and brought to the harassed leaders a great deal of very promising good.

Messrs. Quigley and Eason, two sorely tried and erring umpires, were made the receiving end of side sallies in which practically every man in uniform took a vociferous and wildly gesticulating part. Mesers. Quigley and Eason finally became so exasperated with the harshness of their critics that they exiled divers Dodgers from the fray. Egan got the penalty when he lost a claim of out against Larry Doyle at a critical time in the sixth with the score still tied. Daubert was chased in the following inning. The next round saw the sad departure of the rotund Wilbert Robinson himself.

Egan and Robinson both seemed justified in strenuous remonstrance. Doyle went to third on a long fly which Wheat handled beautifully. Zach's perfect throw was late, but Larry went into Getz's bag standing up. Egan, who took the throw, tagged the New York captain in foul territory. Quigley claimed the runner had been pushed off by Egan. Whether or not that was so, Doyle left the decision open to argument by failing to slide. He scored on a long fly.

Doyle figured also in the stellar role which led to Robinson's exit. In the eighth was on second again when Eason called a balk on Reulbach. From the press box big Ed did not appear to be on the rubber and consequently beyond the pale of such an impost. From his new place of vantage Doyle scored once again on a long fly Daubert's arguments on the other hand was nonsensical. With Merkle on first and none out in the seventh Meyers raised a tall popup to Getz. The Indian loafed on the way to first, seeing which Reulbach raced over to instruct Getz to trap the ball for a double play. The latter made a fair catch before the drift of the advice percolated through his perfect batting but played a very strong defensive game. Wonderful slope, picked it up again and whipped to Dave Robertson has not figured very logical and solve the first one sailed past the plate at a tangent too fast for the bats. The second his first agree, but played a tangent too fast for the bats. The second his customary beat in left field.

Larry Doyle not only won great applause through his perfect batting but played a very strong defensive game. Wonderful slope by him took hits off Wheat and Steagel.

Dave Robertson has not figured very Daubert's arguments on the other hand his glove, picked it up again and whipped to Daubert, who tagged Merkle and claimed a double play. The umpires, ting duite correctly, ruled that Getz had retired the Indian by holding the ball moplace mentarily.

O'Toole pitched one of the very best games of his major league career. He areally deserved a shutout. A wretched at throw by Larry McLean gave Getz second base with two out in the second. A fluky Texas Leaguer scored the run. A write by Robertson opened the way to Brooklyn's brace of counts in the eighth. This was the only inning in which O'Toole meemed the least distressed. Following feemed the least distressed. roulf by Robertson opened the way to prooklyn's brace of counts in the eighth. The Giants will travel to Boston to this was the only inning in which O'Toole cemed the least distressed. Following the error he allowed the Dodgers to bunch pany the champions.

In no other inning did O'Toole permit a hit until after two were out. In the third, fifth and seventh he turned back order. Heretofore one of O'Toole's chief handicaps was lack of con-trol. Yesterday he had the command of a Mathewson. Seldom was he in the hole. good was his aim that he was able to call to his aid every little trick of the art that made him the most highly valued minor prospect that ever broke into fast O'Toole showed a fast ball that was the surprise of every one; it had been rumored that his elbow was one. word the assortment. He depended principally upon his speed and a change of the assortment.

Larry Doyle was the chief support of Marty at the offensive end of the game. The captain made four clean hits in as many appearances. Two of these were converted into runs. Little George Burns abetted Larry on both occasions. In the sixth, following Doyle's double, the left

O'Toole Cause of Robinson's Wrath

FEW realized the extreme exasperation of Wilbert Robinson as he saw his team being carried down to defeat before Marty O'Toole at Ebbets Field yesterday. None appreciated the reason for the frenzied remonstrances of this usually sedate and passive manager on every occasion when an umpire left himself open to criticism. Robinson elucidated after the game.

"I wanted O'Toole two months ago," said Robbie. "I mentioned the fact to McGraw one day. Lay off him,' said Mack, 'his elbow is gone.' I laid off. Now look at him. I guess his elbow looked gone to-day, all right. He never had so much speed in his life."

gardener was hit, giving Fletcher and Robertson their chances of poling out the two extremely long files that worked Larry in from second. In the eighth George followed Doyle's single with a perfect bunt. He advanced with Doyle on the called balk. After Larry talled on Fletcher's fly Robertson hit Burns home. Grant also singled, but Getz tagged

With One Run Washington Beat New Yorks in Pitchers' Bout.

THICK SMOKE IS ON VIEW

Furnished by Speedy Twirlers -Sole Tally of Game Is Made in Ninth.

Thick smoke was on view at the Polo Grounds yesterday, furnished by the pitchers' speed, and the Washingtons made one run and whitewashed the New Yorks. The latter held sixth place, as the Browns were beaten by the Detroits. The Athletics lost their third straight to the Red Sox, while in Cleveland winter rushed the season and framed up a day too cold for the national sport.

A pitchers' bout of rare quality took at the Polo Grounds yesterday. It was between Ray Fisher and Jim Shaw, and as the Washingtons won the game, 1 to 0, Shaw won the bout. Two hits had been made off each pitcher up to the ninth, but in the ninth the Nationals made two more off Fisher and scored the only run. It was Shaw wh made the only run and he made one of the hits. There-grand total of twenty-two, who went out on strikes during the game. The air on strikes during the game. The air around the plate was churned to a froth. There wasn't the variety to Shaw's pitching that Fisher's had; the latter em pitching that Fisher's had; the latter employed a more extensive mixture. But there was a shoot or a hop or a flicker of lightlike dart, something baffling, on Shaw's fast one that made his pitching so effective, assisted by an infrequent clange of pace. Fisher had speed, too, worked the corners, and between making his converse band over the plate and cover. his curve bend over the plate and cross-ing the Washington alammers with a fast one when they were looking for a curve one when they were looking for a curve he hurled on even terms with Shaw for eight innings. He kept the Washingtons away from the bases in seven of rounds, a neat performance in itself, and used the spitter only once, if he wasn't bluffing that time. Pitching extra dry and sparkling.

A noisy person who roared like a men-agerie sat in a front box and was such a persistent pest that Manager Griffith finally complained to the umpire about him. He continued unsuppressed after Griff's protest, but with diminished vol-ume. For a time Nick Altrock answered with imitative roars, but, not having a steel lined larynx, left the other to roar

Shaw passed Maisel and Hartzell in the first inning and had his catcher jumping and grabbing at the wild ones. McBride and Gandil spoke sedative words to Shaw and he found the plate. Two forces a line fly by Mullen to Foster kept Maisel and Hartzell from scoring. Fisher and aldes retired the first nine Washing-ton batters without any of them reaching

The Giants will finish their profitable visit to Brocklyn in a double header this afternoon. The first game will be called at 1:45.

Robinson has Pfeffer primed for a parting shot at his old associates Tesreau is likely to be matched against Brocklyn's best bet.

C. H. Ebbets anticipates a record crowd for the bargain day at Ebbets Field this afternoon. He has arranged to take care of a big overflow in circus seats behind the outfielders.

The handsome rotunda of the Ebbets-mcKeever memorial will be closed to all but patrons willing to spend a dollar and upper seat. The 75 cent patronage will be cared for at entrances in the side streets.

Rube Marquard may be asked to retrieve his disappointing game of Nacot Profits and Daley opened New York's fourth with a single, Mullan nonned out.

BATTLE FOR BRAVES

Smith Scores Winning Run in Twelfth on Gowdy's Bunt Magee Fumbles.

PHILLIES TIE IT UP TWICE

Four Run Lead Levelled in Fifth and Each Side Tallies Once in Eleventh.

were in the lead. The Phillies tied the sixth inning, scored another in the eighth score in the fifth and again in the eleventh after the pennant contenders had tallied.

Three stratght singles filled the bases the third time was the charm. After the visitors had counted in the twelfth the Quakers were unable to respond in kind

Red Smith doubled and was sacrificed to third by Maranville. Gowdy bunted to Magee, who fumbled, and Smith raced across the plate.

In its beginning the game looked like a walkover for the Braves. Mayer, who started pitching for the Phillies, lasted long enough to walk four men and yield a hit. Tincup then came to the rescue and when the inning was over the visitors had piled up four runs. From the second round on Tineup did better than James, who travelled the full distance for Boston. The latter was set upon by the Phillies in the third inning for one run and a big rally in the fifth produced three more, tying the score.

Tincup wavered just a bit in the eleventh and the visitors sent over a run that seemed sure to be the deciding one. Killifer opened the Phillies' half with a single. Byrne batted for Tincup and beat out a bunt, Reed then running for him. The pair advanced on Lobert's sacrifice. Becker walked, filling the bases. Magee clouted against the right field wall, scoring Killifer. Reed's mind was woolgathering, for he didn't leave second until the ball had hit the wall and bounded to the ground. He had to hustle to attain third and on the next play was retired at the plate by Maranville's throw on Cravath's roller. Reed's stupidity really lost the game for the Phillies.

A war of words between Evers and Alexander threatened to be something worse in the twelfth inning. Moran, dodging a wild pitch, accidentally tipped the ball with his bat and it hit him on the head. Evers rushed out, accusing Alex-ander of trying to maim Moran, whereat Lobert joined the debate, which was cut short by mediation of Umpire Klem and neutral players. The score:
